

Communication between

Dr. Zacharias Thundy and Dr Joseph J. Palackal on YAH

On Sun, Jan 12, 2020 at 1:30 PM Joseph Palackal <jpalackal@gmail.com> wrote:

What is the Psitta version of "I am who am?"
Would God have spoken to Moses in Hebrew or Aramaic?

On Jan 13, 2020, at 11:26 AM, Zacharias P Thundy <zthundy@gmail.com> wrote:

No, I don't know. Joe, the only things I can say is that learned priestly authors said. I believe Moses had a say here with the monotheistic learning he had in Egypt where I think Pharaoh Akhnaton preached the monotheism of Moses, as the Jewish God surpassing all other gods. There are or can be other gods, but YAH is our God because he was not made or generated through sexual intercourse etc., by other gods. He was there from the beginning by himself as SVAYAMBHU.

AS FOR THE LANGUAGE OF YAH, IT IS NEITHER EXCLUSIVELY HEBREW OR ARAMAIC OR EGYPTIAN. Who knows? No one knows. What we have is the four letters. You can attach different words to fill the anagram. The priestly caste has a word for it, which only they know and use. YAHYE ASHER YAHYE! Scholars have come up with YAHWEH, JEHOVA etc. My theory is the word is YAH as in HALLELUIAH ("Praise the Lord"). or Praise the living Lord. The root is HAAAYA, "living." That is all I can say. As in BHU in Svayambhu. Other gods are dead or will die etc.